- Narrator Podcast 10, self evaluation.
The three friends catch up the day after Nick's interview. He's feeling pretty bad.
- Nick Hi guys.
- Emina Uh oh, what happened?
- Nick Ah, not much.
- Emina What do you mean? Tell us.
- Nick I think I stuffed up.
- Emina What do you mean?
- Nick For one thing, they expected me to have done my Food Handlers course... and the RSA Cert.
- Emina What's that?
- Nick Responsible Serving of Alcohol. Coz it's a bar you see, even if you're working in the kitchen you gotta have it.
- Tom That's bad luck man!
- Emina So what did he say?
- Nick He said come back when I get the pieces of paper. He was a bit annoyed too coz I was a few minutes late.
- Tom You were late!
- Emina Did you ask any questions?
- Nick I asked about the pay.
- Tom Geez, you shouldn't ask about money till you're further down the track.
- Nick Yeah, but pay's the first thing everyone wants to know about.
- Tom But it shouldn't be your one and only question!
- Nick Oh well. Looks like I won't be working there anyway.
- Emina Mmm... bad luck!
- Nick Should have taken your advice about wearing good clothes, Tom. The guy was looking me up and down. It was so embarrassing.
- Emina You'll get another interview.
- Nick Yeah, I'll be better prepared next time.
- Tom So, what's happening with your application, Emina?
- Emina I don't know. It's been a few days since the interview, I haven't heard.
- Nick Yeah, how did it go?
- Emina I think it went OK.

Nick Better than mine, I bet!

Emina Well luckily I practised with the teacher, I was ready for his questions and I didn't feel that nervous.

Tom So, what did they say in the end?

Emina They said they'd let me know.

Tom If you haven't heard after a couple of weeks, you know you can ring up and see if a decision has been made.

Emina Oh, OK...I'll do that. At least then I'll know then one way or the other.

Tom Good luck with it.

Nick Yeah, good luck, Emina.

Emina And good luck to you too, Nick.
